Wiley named to editorial board of The Scientist

Steven Wiley, PNNL Laboratory Fellow and Director of PNNL's Biomolecular Systems Initiative, has been named to the newly formed editorial board of The Scientist, a print and web magazine that covers all aspects of the life sciences (<http://www.the-scientist.com/>). Board members will contribute and comment on ideas on cutting-edge research, policy issues, life in the life sciences, and the impact of science on society. Board functions will include suggesting article topics, commenting on proposed topics and outlines, contributing a vision article or blog, meeting with the Editor or Deputy Editor yearly, and providing candid feedback on the magazine. The Board includes researchers and science leaders from scientific, academic, and federal institutions and industry.
